

Scheduling with reservations

Denis Trystram

INP grenoble

Abstract

We will first present and discuss some basic model for scheduling in the context of computational grids. We will focuss on parallel rigid jobs. We will first recall standard results without reservations, then, we will propose to analyze the problem with reservations. First, we will see why the general problem may not be feasible, then, we will study the restricted reservation problem. An approximation algorithm will be presented.